'Dance of Death' Killer Sentenced

GLEN BARKER, 24-year old ex-college boy and member of a well-to-do farmer's family, who pleaded guilty to the knife slaying of Helen Welhouse (at left), 18-year-old orphan, at a country dance near Appleton, Wis., was sentenced to from fourteen years to life at hard labor in the state penitentiary at Waupun in a five-minute trial.

Teacher Denies Telling Pupils of Darwin Theory

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 11.—(UP)—Farmers crowded into a little red schoolhouse near here last night and early today to hear Mrs.
Laura Elms Morris deny she taught her pupils that man is a monkey without a tail.

Fighting to regain the job from which she was dismissed on charges of incompetence and cruelty, Mrs. Morris testified at a school board hearing while farmers and their wives occupied the desks of the one-room brick building and a score of children sat on a rafter near the rear.

Mrs. Morris, 43, the mother of two children, was accused of punishing her pupils with a buggy whip, a ball bat and an iron poker and the hearing was to have been concerned only with those charges.
But the farmers and the school directors were interested in the reports from pupils that she taught the Darwinian theory of evolution.

Angle Presented
After several hours of questioning during which Mrs. Morris denied that she hit students with a mushball bat and a poker, Attorney J. R. Scott, for the school board, brought the evolution angle
into the hearing.

"Now, Mrs. Morris," Scott said,
"there has been considerable testimony by several pupils that you have been telling them that the human race originated from monkeys. Is that true?"
The farmers leaned forward at

'LOST' AIRPLANE FOUND ANCHORED AT PORT LUDLOW

PORT LUDLOW, Wash., Aug.
11—(UP)—Search for an Alaskan airways seaplane, which carried nine persons including two women and two children and was unreported for 30 hours, ended abruptly last night when the plane was found riding safely at anchor here while the passengers enjoyed a visit with relatives.

They had neglected to inform company officials of their stopover and an alarm had been sent to all U. S. coast guard stations in the Northwest and to officials of British Columbia. The coast guard already had begun a search for the plane.

Pilot Tony Schwamm said he was forced to land because the plane struck a flock of seagulls
and a propeller was damaged.
Port Ludlow is only 30 miles from Seattle, where the plane took off at 3 p. m. Monday. Passengers aboard included Carl Anderson,
president of Alaskan Airways,
Mrs. Anderson, the two Anderson children and their woman tutor.
Also aboard were a Mrs. Sch-wamm and two mechanics, Craig
Hansen, Petersburg, and Jim Mc Mahon, New York.

SOVIET KILLS 72 FOR COMPLICITY IN TRAIN WRECK

MOSCOW, Aug. 11—(UP)— Seventy-two persons have been executed by Soviet authorities at Irkutsk, on charges of complicity in train wrecks on the East Siberian railroad. It was charged they acted in behalf of the Japanese intelligence service.
The accused were specifically charged with causing a wreck on March 19 in which fourteen persons were killed and thirty injured. The wreck derailed 48 cars.

WAGE AND HOUR BILL TO DELAY END OF SESSION

House Revolt is Growing;
President's Opposition
To Loan Crop Noted

WEST MEETS LEADERS

August 21 Grows Dimmer as Final Meeting

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 — (UP)—House revolt against the wages and hours bill and the president's opposition to crop loans threatened congressional adjournment plans today.

House leaders, holding the key to adjournment due to the fact that three major "must" bills are tied up in the house, admitted that at present they lacked sufficient votes in the house rules committee to obtain a rule to bring the controversial wages-hours bill to the house floor.

Committee Delayed

They were forced to arrange postponement of a rules committee meeting to consider right of way for the labor measure when a check showed that the committee would refuse a rule to bring the bill up in the house tomorrow or Friday.

Plans to adjourn by August 21 appeared to be dimmer because of the conflict over farm and labor problems.

tact man Charles West, under-

PAROLE OFFICER SUSPENDED FOR CONVICT'S ACTS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 11—(UP)— C. B. Rule, parole officer for the Cleveland district, was suspended for 30 days by State Welfare Director Margaret Allman today for permitting Henry Kutler, a London prison farm convict, to extend a five-day leave of absence to 24 days.

Mrs. Allman said she was issuing a general order to wardens of Ohio prisons directing them not to permit prisoners to leave their institutions unless accompanied by guards.

Rule did not appear today for a scheduled hearing before the welfare director because of his mother-in-law's funeral at Green Springs.

The suspension order stated that it was issued as a matter of discipline, not only because of the Kutler incident but because Rule had left his job in Cleveland without permission of the department head.

E. J. Meacham, general parole agent with officers here, was assigned to the Cleveland district during Rule's absence. Rule was notified of his suspension by telephone.
Kutler was held to the grand jury under $25,000 bond on a charge of stealing tires while on leave from the prison farm. His leave was granted to visit his sick mother.

CHOICE STEERS REACH $17.60 ON CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 11—(UP)—
The price of choice steers swept to a 9-year high at the Chicago
stockyards today when 1336-pound steers were sold at $17.60 per hun-dredweight.

Today's high price reflected the recent rise in hog prices which carried the price of swine to an 11-year high in the Chicago yards and marked the second time in the week that steers prices have made a record top.
Helfers sold at $16.25, highest since 1930.

Ohio Spends Much Money For Primary

Women Clerks at Urbana
Darn Socks, While Men
Play Cards

BY UNITED PRESS
Ohio spent about $125,000 on Tuesday's municipal primaries, which brought to the polls only a handful of voters and stirred only mild interest.

Because there were comparatively few spirited contests for nominations, election booth clerks took it easy. At Urbana, women clerks darned socks and men clerks played cards to pass the time.

Many city candidates were unopposed for nominations. Write-in campaigns were conducted in a few places. Enough friends "wrote in" the name of Harry Byers to give him the Republican nomination for mayor of Bellevue. Byers was dismissed two months ago by Mayor R. E. Woelagel from the police department. Mayor Woelagel was unopposed on the Democratic ticket.

FIVE TO FIGHT FOR NEW YORK MAYOR'S OFFICE

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(UP)—
The most bitter primary fight in the history of New York City was forecast today.

When the deadline for presentation of designating petitions was reached at midnight, two Democratic and three Republican tickets had been filed with the board of elections. They were:

Republican
Republican-Fusion — Mayor F.
H. LaGuardia.
Republican Anti New Deal —
former Representative Charles C.
Bond.
Anti-LaGuardia ticket — U. S.
Senator Royal S. Copeland.
Democrat
Tammany ticket — Royal S.
Copeland.

Four-county ticket (anti Tammany-pro New Deal)—Jeremiah T. Mahoney.
Including petitions for Grover A.
Whalen, there actually were three majority candidates entered in the Democratic race. But Whalen will decline in favor of Mahoney, who is backed by the forces who opposed Copeland's selection by Rep. Christopher D. Sullivan, new Tammany leader. All candidates have until Friday to withdraw.

The status of LaGuardia remained in doubt though three designating petitions with 35,028 signatures were filed for him. He has not indicated whether he will accept the Republican designation.
Kenneth F. Simpson, leader of New York county, said he would.

1,635 CITIZENS MARCH TO POLLS

Only 124 Republicans Cast Ballots With No
Contest Listed; Mayor Gets 93

Casting a total of 1,511 votes, Circleville Democrats nominated William B. Cady for mayor, John E. Himrod for treasurer, and elected Donald Mason as councilman for the First Ward and William M. Reid for councilman from the Fourth Ward in Tuesday's primary.

Republicans, having no contests, wrote in the name of Robert L. Brehmer for councilman-at-large, nominating him with 14 votes, more than the eight percent of the total Republican ballot of 124 votes required for nomination by write-in.

Mr. Cady received 704 votes as compared with 558 for D. Adrian Yates and 248 for Boyd Horn, his opponents.
Cady Loses Two Precincts

Mr. Cady lost only two precincts to Mr. Yates and only one to Mr. Horn. The Fourth ward precinct C voted against the Democratic nominee in favor of both his opponents, while Mr. Yates carried the south precinct of Ward 3 by 20 votes. The nominee ran well in all precincts, however, getting 43,
his low mark, in Second Ward C where a low vote was cast, and 94, his high score, in Second Ward A.

Mr. Cady will oppose Mayor W. J. Graham, Republican incumbent, at the November election. Mayor Graham defeated Mr. Cady in November, 1935, when Cady sought a second term, after a 1,375-tie vote. Recounts and a court action resulted in Mr. Graham obtaining the office.
Graham received 93 votes Tuesday.

John Himrod defeated Harry L.
Bartholomew by a margin of 234 votes in the treasurer's race. Him-rod received 791, Bartholomew 557.
Himrod will oppose Mack Parrett,
Jr., Republican incumbent, in November. Parrett received 106 complimentary votes.
Mr. Mason received 239 votes in the First Ward council race as compared to 171 for C. O. Leist, incumbent.
Mr. Reid won the Fourth Ward council position by 38 votes from
T. M. Barnes, incumbent. Mr.
Reid received 210 votes, Mr. Barnes 172. There are no Republican candidates for either the First or Fourth Ward positions.

Goeller Given 938
John C. Goeller, president of council, seeking reelection, received the highest number of votes cast for any candidate, 938. He had no opposition. Carl Leist, unopposed for city solicitor, was second with 920.
The three Democratic candidates for councilman-at-large received the following votes: Ben H. Gordon, incumbent, 900; Frank A.
Lynch, 878, and C. W. Helvering, 724. Julius H. Helwage, unopposed in the Second Ward, obtained 224.
John W. Neuding, Democrat, and Harry L. Steinhauser, Republican, incumbent, seeking the Third Ward council position without opposition in their respective parties, received 144 and 14 votes, respectively.
Both Mr. Leist and Mr. Barnes were supporters of the 10-year
rate contract with the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co., now being attacked with referendum petitions to place it before voters at the November election. Frank Marion and E. S. Neuding, other rate ordinance supporters, did not seek re-election.

The official tabulation was completed shortly before 9:30 p. m.
First precinct to report was Third Ward A in the county engineer's office. The report was submitted about 7:15 o'clock. The last to re-

Chillicothe Mayor Wins In Hot Fight

James Ford, 72, Surprises
By Turning Back Five
Democratic Foes

Mayor James E. Ford, of Chillicothe, known among Circleville and Pickaway county residents because of his long activity in politics, had the laugh on his Democratic foes in the Ross county seat,
Wednesday, as a result of Tuesday's primary election.

Ford, named defendant in ouster proceedings by a Citizenship league
because of his failure to force slot machines out of the city, was opposed by five Democrats in the primary. He won the nomination, and will seek a second term against Harold H. Brown, Republican, and former member of the Ohio house of representatives.
Judge Harry Jewell, of Delaware county, has not ruled on the ouster proceedings, having taken the case under advisement.

Ford was "read out" of Democratic politics in the 11th Ohio district a year ago when he campaigned against Harold Claypool, Chillicothe, now serving in the U.
S. congress.
Ford is 72.

BOY QUESTIONED ABOUT FATALITY AT SHADEVILLE

A 19-year-old youth, residing just south of the Franklin county line, was taken to Columbus Tuesday night by the state highway patrol for questioning in connection with a fatal auto accident the night of June 31, at Shaderville,
in which a woman was killed.
Sheriff Charles Radcliff said
the car involved in the mishap bore West Virginia tags. The youth formerly resided in West Virginia, the sheriff said, and a car answering the description of the one involved in the accident was traded in Point Pleasant, W.
Va., about two weeks after the collision.
Sheriff Radcliff said he did not know the name of the youth nor all information was submitted to the state patrol. He was awaiting word from Columbus about the case Wednesday.
The youth, he said, admitted
being in an auto mishap and stopping to stop.

UNION PREPARES FOR NEW MARCH ON FORD PLANT

Reuther to Lead U. A. W. in New Attempt to Pass Out Literature

800 MEN ARE CALLED

First Effort Resulted in Beatings for 15

DEARBORN, Mich., Aug. 11. — (UP)—The United Automobile Workers march again on the vast Ford plant at River Rouge today. Less than three months ago, an attempt to distribute union literature resulted in fighting in which 15 union members were beaten.

Some 800 union members were called for duty in this, the third attempt by the U. A. W. to publicly distribute literature to workers in the Ford factories which employ 88,000 workers. They were to gather at the office of the west side local at 1 p. m. and march on the Ford plant an hour later.

Hearing on Schedule

First attempt to distribute handbills to Ford employees ended in the battle of May 26 in which Richard T. Frankenstein, organizational director; Walter Reuther, president of the west side local, and 13 other union members were beaten. This fighting was the basis for an exhaustive hearing by the National Labor Relations Board into charges of Wagner labor act violation against Ford.

A second "assault" on the Rouge plant, scheduled for July 7 a day after the labor board hearing started—was cancelled an hour before marching time. The union said it had received an unsigned telegram that said a new "attack" by Ford private police awaited its arrival.

Today Walter Reuther will head the union forces. Frankenstein is in Milwaukee for the annual convention of the union. Reuther flew back to Detroit from Milwaukee last night.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

A racy comedy about a man who wanted to be a reporter and who spent oodles of other people's money to realize his ambition brought Edward Everett Horton and a fine list of comedians to the Cliftona Theatre in the uproarious "Wild Money," today on a double feature program with Guy Kibbee in "The Big Shot."

Based on the Saturday Evening Post story "Tightwad," by Paul Gallico, "Wild Money" includes Lynne Overman, Lucien Littlefield, Benny Baker and Porter Hall among its list of funmakers while feminine pulchritude and romance is supplied by Louise Campbell, a newcomer from the New York stage, and lovely Ruth Coleman.

AT THE GRAND

In the role of a French mannequin who rises to the heights of fashion dictator for the world, Kay Francis, beautiful brunette dramatic actress, who wears clothes so magnificently, is starred in "Stolen Holiday," First National production which will be the feature attraction at the Grand Theatre, beginning Wednesday.

The story was literally "made to order" for Miss Francis. The original story by Warren Duff and Virginia Kellogg, was tailored for Kay and no one else, and so was the screen play by Casey Robinson.

Al Jolson Challenges Gallery at Fight Show

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—(UP)—Two men were booked at the city jail today in connection with a whisky bottle hurling at the Olympic auditorium last night that slightly injured Chico Marx and showered Al Jolson and his wife Ruby Keeler with flying glass.

Jolson, "mammy singer" of the stage and screen, outraged at the peril to his wife, interrupted the boxing program to challenge the whole gallery to come down and fight. The bottle had sailed down from the gallery.

Ruled for Baby

Approached by physicians at a Philadelphia hospital on a course to follow in the case of a dying mother and her unborn baby, Judge Harry Kalodner ruled that it was legal to hurry the body of Mrs. Mary Bocca-sini to an operating table the second her heart gave out. But, Judge Kalodner ruled, the law would be transgressed if surgeons operated while Mrs. Bocca-sini, suffering from tubercular meningitis, was still alive.

FIVE CIRCLEVILLE YOUTHS ENROLL IN INDIANA CMTC

INTERNATIONAL GOOD DEEDS

THERE ARE at least two places in the world in this strange August, where racial differences and quarrels are forgotten. One is Camp Andree in New York State, where the first international Girl Scout Encampment is taking place. The other is Camp Vogensanz in The Netherlands where thousands of Boy Scouts from all over the world are holding their big international Jamboree.

Only six European nations are missing from the boys' gathering. No delegations have been sent from Germany, Italy, Russia, Spain, Bulgaria and Turkey. But there are lads from England and France and from China and Japan, from Palestine, Australia, Mexico, Armenia, Syria, Greece, Persia. And others are on their way.

At the girls' gathering there are to be no special ceremonies other than those at the opening and closing of camp. The idea is to leave the girls the full two weeks to get acquainted, sharing daily chores together and mingling in playtime activities.

If Chinese and Japanese Scouts, and all the others, can find a meeting ground of common interests, and can develop mutual good will and respect, why cannot statesmen, business men, industrialists of different lands do the same? Is there not hope for the future in these great international gatherings of fine boys and girls? When they come to responsible citizenship in their own lands, perhaps their youthful companionship will help them to solve the problems that have troubled their rulers for ages.

THE POLIO AGAIN

AN EPIDEMIC of infantile paralysis is feared in northern Kentucky and the Campbell County Board of Health barred children under twelve from churches, schools, playgrounds and theaters recently.

This is doubtless a good move to prevent the spread of the disease, and it is useful always, when danger of an epidemic of any kind exists, that people in general should be made conscious of the peril and should learn ways to prevent it.

But fear, wholesale or individual, militates against proper care of any disease. In any community endangered by polio-myelitis or any other contagious illness, people should be told these three things:

1. How to avoid contagion.
2. What to do if the first symptoms of the disease appear in the family.
3. How to keep others from catching it.

Then, knowing what to avoid, the community should be calm and go about its affairs without any general alarm. The chances are that there will be no widespread epidemic, and that isolated cases may be promptly cared for and most of them cured.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

By ROBERT TERHUNE

When I was asked to "guest write" this column I thought our friend Tom was on another vacation. Later I learned it was merely a "writing vacation." Pepys and Tom may keep diaries, but this is the first I have written—for publication. (Say, Tom, do I have to sign my name?) Well, if you are interested in the day of an educator, here goes.

What is that familiar sound that forces itself into my peaceful slumbers? Ah! It is the jabbering of the young heir in his nursery. He surely must be a member of the "Dawn Patrol."

Betz' restaurant provided my morning coffee. There I visited with George Burch, who was gathering the remains of the Sunday distribution, and with George Hammel, the softball league's "best friend." Consulted with George McDowell and then Bruce Stevenson's, where I lamented with huge and decanting cups by his daughter Margaret Jean and Grace, visited with the Ned Bells and Mr. Robinson, a Sigma Chi, from State, who remembers those old college days. At George Fischer's home, I found the entire family potato digging and was the recipient of more garden produce. Stopped to see Charles Niles before dashing home for lunch.

Mrs. Sterling Lamb and Bobby came by as I was leaving to counsel with Frank Fischer, my new boss, who has just returned from a trip to Chicago. Found him making arrangements for a board meeting. Stopped in for "the pause that refreshes," Frank Lynch please note, and chatted with Mrs. Emmitt Barnhart, Wahnetta Barnhart, Jessie Dresbach and Dick Plum. Dick and Wahnetta will soon leave for Miami for that higher education. Noticed Tink Hill decorating a window and offered my moral support.

Saw Ed Ebert, Bob Maloney and George Fickard, who are interested in the new lighting system at the gridiron. We all hope the innovation will be an inspiration to the boys of Red and Black this Fall. Football is in the air again.

Shook hands with Ernie Hill, who always tries to break your wrist, and then proceeded to the Country Club for the regular Kiwanis meeting. One of the early arrivals was P. D. Miller, who with Mrs. Miller, just returned from a Canadian vacation. Visited with Mrs. Hanley and was very pleased to answer her inquiries about the young son. Welcomed Mr. Gephart, a fellow Kiwanian, who has been very successful in his new position. After enjoying a fine steak dinner, headed the call to order by President Dwight Steele's gavel and witnessed the installation of Luther Bower by Judge Brown. Enjoyed the talk by Link Mader's guest, the Rev. G. L. Troutman. His subject being "Ships That Pass in the Night."

Enroute home stopped to talk with Tom Burke and Bob Norris. Finally after an average day, to the comfort of my favorite chair and the radio. Enjoyed another Red Bird victory and then to bed.

JOHN HAMILTON ON THE SKIDS

WASHINGTON — The skids are under John Hamilton as Chairman of the Republican National Committee. He is almost sure to go.

Plan is to replace him by the first of the year, so that his successor will have ample time to get ready for a revival of GOP activity in next spring's crucial congressional primaries.

Leaders in the ouster drive are Alf Landon, who originally selected Hamilton as National Chairman, and Joe Pew, Pennsylvania oil magnate and a heavy contributor. Also opposed are several other veteran party chiefs, privately never enthusiastic over Hamilton.

A group of the latter held a secret meeting in New York recently at which they discussed ways and means of getting rid of John. All were optimistic about the chances of the Republican Party staging a strong comeback in Congress next year, but all agreed it could not be done effectively under John Hamilton.

This sentiment was conveyed to Alf Landon and Colonel Knox. In fact, the Colonel got a report from an old friend who was present and joined in the Hamilton anvil chorus.

Landon and Knox have exchanged several letters and held one conference regarding Hamilton since the 1936 campaign, and it is a safe bet that John will soon feel the thrill of the skids under his heel.

NOTE — Except for his own vote and that of Ralph Williams, National Committeeman from Oregon, Hamilton cannot count definitely on support from any other members of the National Committee. Hamilton receives $25,000 a year and expenses, but can be removed at any time.

SHAM CRY

Illustrative of the hollowness of the Congressional clamor for adjournment is the inside story of why it took so long to bring the wage-hour bill before the House.

The fact that John O'Connor was busy taking his son to camp was one reason. Southern opposition was another.

The House Labor Committee reported the measure out a week ago Tuesday. It was expected that the Rules Committee would meet the next day, decide on the number of hours of debate, and begin that debate on Thursday.

But nothing of the kind happened.

Instead, a full week went by before the Rules Committee met on the question. Reason: Of the ten Democrats on the committee, the five Southern members had evinced marked hostility to the bill. Fearing that they would vote with the Republicans to shelve it, Administration leaders wanted to be sure of the presence of Representative John O'Connor, hard-boiled chairman of the committee.

He, however, had other plans. He was taking his young son to a summer camp and could not be bothered. So the works had to be shut down until O'Connor got back.

The bill, incidentally, faces just as rough going in the House as it experienced in the Senate.

It's queer the new French finance minister is having such a hard time to cut government expenses when all the department heads are in favor of economy — except in their own departments.

RUSTLE OF SILKS

READ THIS FIRST:
Mary Ebert, ambitious to become a dress designer, has established herself in Paris through a partnership with Countess Andree that was made possible by Mark Sutherland, an American playboy she met on shipboard. Mary likes Mark but misses Tony Castle, owner of a smart New York shop who gave her her start. She left the Castle shop suddenly nearly three years previously after an altercation with Tony's head buyer. More and more she realizes she is in love with Tony. Her success in Paris has been phenomenal and, thanks to Mari Barat, the name she has assumed, Andree's shop is growing famous. Mark Sutherland, in Paris again, tells Mary he has big plans for her. Mark introduces Mary to a prominent American fashion editor, Claire Todd. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 20

IN THE town car—Mark always rented a town car when he didn't have one of his own cars in Paris—Mary folded her dramatic black and red cape around her.

"How did I do?" she asked anxiously.

"You were slightly terrific. Terrific, by the way, is the newest popular adjective in the dear old U. S. A. which you seem to have forsaken."

"Tell me about it—home," she said dreamily.

"Well, we're in the midst of a little depression which you may have heard about."

"I know, but it has helped us rather than hurt. Our prices aren't too high. What else?"

"And repeal. We don't have to slip through cellar doors any more. And sad that is! We're all too polite now, dining in the open so to speak."

Mary sighed because Mark's world was so different from her own. The world of Park avenue was far removed from what had been her world.

"I used to live at the foot of Sutton place on East Fifty-fifth street," she said from a long way off.

"Then you wouldn't know the old place. Very smart apartments have replaced the old houses in the last year."

"Oh, no," Mary protested. That would mean the last tie was broken.

"Oh, yes, and very nice they are."

Then the studio apartment was gone into the past like everything else that she had left behind her. She shook herself free of the sudden melancholy that threatened her.

"Did you think that Mrs. Todd was interested, or was she being polite when she said she'd like to see my things?"

Already Mary was beginning unconsciously to say "my things."

"You don't know Claire. She doesn't have time to do things to be polite. She's a very busy woman."

"I'm glad," Mary answered. "If you've got what she likes, she can do things."

"What things?"

"Oh, lots of things," Mark made a gesture to include vague accomplishments. "Let's talk about you for a change. I haven't seen you for a year and I'm bored with dressmaking."

"All right, you begin."

"Very well; have you thought about court yet?"

"Oh, I have, Mark. I remember the time that we..."

"I don't want you to remember. I want to know if you haven't thought of the future?" For a moment Mary felt startled. The thought occurred to her for the first time that perhaps she hadn't really understood Mark. "I mean haven't you sometimes wished to see me?"

"But now that you're here," she said passing it off with a smile, "let's not talk about it."

"I've thought a lot about you, Mary"—Mark would never call her Mari, with the inflection at the end. "Would you be interested in hearing what I've been thinking?"

"Perhaps," she said slowly. "Well, then, I've been thinking that perhaps you've grown up in the last year or so. Got over some of those old-fashioned ideas of yours."

"Poor Mark! I'm really sorry for you. You've worked so hard on the poor little girl from the sticks! But why? There are so many other girls. Why waste time on me?"

"Either you are very modest or you're trying to be clever. At your age, Mary, I'm surprised and a little disappointed."

"The comforting thought is, Mark, that I'm not the only girl who feels the way I do. It's no reflection on your charm. I think you are one of the most amusing, attractive men I've ever known but I don't happen to agree with your idea that we are missing, to put it in your own words, a lot of fun. I have higher stakes to work for than 'a lot of fun' with a man because he happens to be gay, amusing and attractive."

"I might be more than that. You might at least give me a chance."

"A chance for what?" she asked seriously.

"You might get to like me more if you got used to me."

"I don't want to, Mark. If you mean that I might fall in love with you, you might be right, but I can't see that it would do me much good. I have too many things to do to tarry along the way to nurse a broken heart."

"There you go, talking like the heroine of a novel. Must love enter into it?"

"Did you ever hear of people liking each other a lot? Enough?"

"I've read about it and it seems ideal. 'Seizing well the moment, parting with a smile, and going on. But how can it? Life isn't that way, Mark. Some people don't 'seize well' and two people who do, seldom seem to get together. Others pretend to and wake up with a bruise that goes too deep. I've heard lots of girls talk about it and I haven't envied them."

"Poor, little Mary, she's in love with love. You ought to fall in love someday, my child, and get over it. Get these romantic ideas out of your head. You'll find life is easier and much more pleasant."

"All right, Mark, I'll fall in love with the first man I meet tomorrow."

Mary was beginning to be bored and annoyed with the conversation.

"Why not the last man you see tonight?"

Mary grinned. "The concierge?"

"I was thinking of myself."

"But you don't want me to fall in love with you."

"I do not! I think too much of you. But I do think that you might cultivate a different frame of mind about me. You might, for example, think about me as a moment to be seized if ever you think about such experimental things."

"I assure you I will, but I'd appreciate it if you'd maintain a gentlemanly silence about it from now on. I promise to let you know if I ever change my present frame of mind."

"I'd come from far distances," he said winningly.

"I hope it would be China, and you wouldn't forget that it is a woman's privilege to change her mind."

"You wouldn't take advantage of that, would you, Mary? Somehow I've always thought of you as the gamest girl I know. There's nothing of the quitter about you. Remember, I told you that once before?"

When she had left Mark that night, Mary took counsel of herself. Tony Castle had once told her that he didn't think she was a quitter.

But she had been.

Long into the night she debated the wisdom of her move that time long past when she had quit. As abruptly as that, without so much as a note of farewell, she had stayed up the long and bitter night through to pack her belongings and move out of his life. But why should she have bade farewell to Tony? She had earned what he had given her and he had had neither need or want of her. That night she wrote to Tony. In the morning, however, she tore the note into little pieces.

DIET AND HEALTH

Constitutional Invalid Does Not Need Surgery

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE LARGE GROUP of humans we mentioned yesterday who are born with a weak and inadequate body build, and who suffer all sorts of symptoms and discomforts from that bodily build, have been treated in many different ways at many different times.

They do have an unhappy time in life, and those of us who enjoy good health most of the time cannot probably understand them very well. They are never quite sick enough to go to bed, and never quite well enough to do a stretch of hard work. They have weak backs and weak stomachs and fleeting pains. No wonder they are so often discouraged, and embrace eagerly any new method of treatment that is suggested.

One way in which improvement has been made in handling them is that radical measures of surgery have long been given up. In the excited days of forty years ago in medicine, when surgery had learned to be safe and at the same time the X-ray and many other laboratory tests came in, diagnostic workers in the latter departments found many tempting things for the surgeon to experiment on.

Especially was surgery tempted to work on these constitutionally inadequate frames. Here was a person with a thin, sagging body line, and it was found that there was some stoppage in the movements of the large intestine with stasis there. All sorts of bands and adhesions were discovered to account for this. Surgeons, at least some of the more enthusiastic thought removal of the bands, or operations for partial removal of the large intestine itself would help, and they performed these operations by the thousands. They performed enough of them to show that only in rare instances did it do any good, and in most hospitals today such operations have been given up.

Another Example
Floating kidney was another example of a condition naturally associated with this type of body build. The kidney does not have to be in a definite fixed place; it is always a little moveable and may "float" quite a distance without doing any harm. Thirty years ago, surgeons saw floating kidneys into place all the time. Now only when it gives trouble by twisting on itself and producing cramps is this considered necessary.

Chronic appendicitis was another condition frequently ascribed as a cause of many of the symptoms of the chronic invalid of this type. The trouble with the diagnosis of chronic appendicitis is that even after the appendix is out the discomfort still persists. It doesn't seem reasonable to have symptoms of chronic appendicitis after the appendix is gone. So, though it may be a cause of pain and indigestion in some instances, most surgeons do not perform this operation very frequently any more.

All of which is a good thing for the constitutionally inadequate invalid. He is learning that his salvation will come through a way of life, not by a sudden stroke of magic.

"What's the idea?" demanded the fistic fancier, "you know you can't fight!" "Who said I could?" retorted Dummy, dunking a pretzel, "I don't know the difference between a right cross and a three-ounce glove."

"What's your defense?" queried the habitue of the squared ring. "That's easy," answered Dummy, "I didn't do it I was out of town on the night of June 16—besides, those aren't my fingerprints—and it must have been two other fellows, named Benito and Adolf."

FACTS AND FANCIES

Painting Your Home

Whether you are having your new home painted or your old one repainted, there are several things to consider before the job is begun, says Lenore Kent, in Good Housekeeping. She goes on to give these pointers on painting:

Consider carefully the color scheme before you instruct your painter what colors to use. There are several angles to consider; the color of your roof, the color of neighboring houses, the style of architecture and your own personal preference.

Remember that color used on large areas looks quite different from the way it does on the small region occupied by a color chip. Also that some colors dry darker than they appear as put on—others lighter. For this reason it is a good idea to have your selected colors brushed out on a large board and allowed to dry before you give the painter your final okay. It is wise to inquire as to the permanence of the shade and select those of enduring service even at a higher price.

Finally, be sure to entrust the painting of your home to workmen who have a reputation for their dependability and skill. Experienced painters will know how to deal with the problems of old as well as new construction.

Hot Fudge Sauce

One and one-half ounces bitter chocolate, one cup boiling water, one cup sugar, two tablespoons light corn syrup, three tablespoons butter, dash salt, few drops vanilla. Grate chocolate or break into small pieces. Put into saucepan, add boiling water. Heat slowly, stirring until chocolate is well blended with water. Stir in sugar and corn syrup. Heat again to boiling and boil until the mixture forms a thick jellylike mass when tried in cold water. Remove from stove, add vanilla and butter, stirring them in. Serve hot or cold. This sauce may be stored and reheated as needed.

Serve With Meat

Current jelly sauce is good served with beef, veal or lamb. Add half a cup of currant jelly to the drippings left in the roasting pan. The sauce may be served separately or may be poured directly over the meat.

Cantaloupe and Peach Conserve

Three cups peeled and diced cantaloupe, three cups peeled and diced peaches, juice and grated rind three lemons, four cups sugar. Prepare fruits, combine. Sprinkle with sugar. Let stand one hour. Then heat very slowly to boiling, boil until thick and clear. Turn into sterile glasses and seal with paraffin. It makes a rich conserve to be served with hot biscuits, or with cream cheese and wafers for dessert.

Banana Bread

Three bananas, three-fourths cup sugar, one unbeaten egg, two tablespoons melted shortening, two cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon

JURIES THREATEN TO SLASH CHICAGO CUBS' LEAD OVER NATIONAL

COLLINS, ROOT, JORGES AND LEE PUT ON BENCH

Cavaretta Goes to First as Star Clubber Breaks His Ankle

GIANTS LOSE TO BEES

White Sox Move Up, Beating Detroit 6 to 4

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(UP)—The injury jinx caught up with the Chicago Cubs again today just when they were ready to shake off all challengers for the National League pennant.

The Cubs still were six games ahead, but were riddled by injuries. Four regulars were laid up today and one of them probably will be on the shelf until late September.

The cripples were First Baseman James (Ripper) Collins, Shortstop Billy Jorges, Ace Pitcher Bill Lee and Chief Relief Pitcher Charlie Root.

Collins fractured his ankle sliding home in the first inning of the Cubs-Pirates game yesterday. Loss of Collins is a hard blow—one which might cost the Cubs the pennant. His batting average was only .279 but he has driven in 67 runs.

Cavaretta Called

To replace him young Phil Cavaretta, who played first when the Cubs won the flag in 1935, moved in from center to take over his old job, and Joe Marty returned to center.

Lonnie Frey is subbing at short for Jorges, who was injured Saturday. He strained his back the same day, and may be out longer than expected. On Sunday Root fell and hurt a finger. He may be ready in a few days.

In addition to losing Collins the Cubs blew a game to the Pirates, 6-5, yesterday. Al Todd hit a homer off Larry French with the bases loaded, but the Cubs wiped up the Pirates' lead when Billy Herman hit a four base clout with two on. But Pittsburgh rallied to score two runs off Clyde Shoun in the eighth.

The Cubs didn't lose any ground because the Giants lost to the Boston Bees, 6-1. Danny MacFayden held the Giants to six hits. Tony Cuccinello hit a homer with two on and drove in four runs.

Lon Warneke pitched his 13th victory as the Cardinals triumphed over the Cincinnati Reds, 3-2. He allowed only six hits.

Brooklyn clouted 14 hits and beat the Phillies, 7-3. Heinie Manush had a perfect day at bat, "3 for 3." Tom Winsett drove in four runs. Roy Henshaw pitched his third complete game of the season, allowing nine hits.

The Chicago White Sox moved into third place in the American League by beating Detroit, 6-4. Four walks, two by Auker and two by Gill, followed by Luke Sewell's single gave the White Sox three runs in the eighth to overcome the Tigers' early lead.

Against South's contract of 3-No Trumps, West led the diamond 3, which East won with the A and returned the diamond 7 to South's Q. The declarer led a club, which East won and knocked out South's last diamond.

The declarer now ran his three remaining clubs, cashed the spade A and finessed the spade J, which held. When West had been forced to discard on the third and fourth club rounds he had tossed one heart and one spade. With the successful spade finesse, West's discards made it easy for South to make his game, as four spade tricks were cashed, three clubs and two diamonds.

West had an opportunity to defeat 3-No Trumps. His partner had captured two tricks and it was then entirely up to him to protect his holdings to guarantee the defeat of the contract. It was important for him, when forced to make two discards, to retain his diamond, but it was also necessary for him to retain his spades intact. His correct discards were the hearts 4 and K.
With that defense the declarer could not possibly have made his contract. One heart entry was all West needed to retain, but he held on to his two honors in the suit and handed the contract to the declarer.

MINER MISSING FOR 36 HOURS REACHES SAFETY

MARION, Ill., Aug. 11—(UP)—Jesse Wilson, 28, mine owner lost for 36 hours in the abandoned tunnels of Peabody Mine No. 3 near here, suddenly appeared at the mine entrance today just as rescue crews prepared to descend to continue a search for him.

Wilson walked out of the mine smiling broadly and said "Well, I guess I got lost."

He was rushed to a hospital at Herrin, Ill., but physicians who examined him said he was suffering only from exhaustion and hunger.

The mine owner said he had gone into the abandoned mine intending to spend only about an hour looking around but got lost in the maze of tunnels. He said he plunged into a 50-foot strip of water which separates the Peabody workings from a small slope mine owned jointly with his father, Roy Wilson, and had kept walking until he saw a slit of light, which he followed to the mine entrance.

His appearance ended a search by rescue squads composed of volunteer miners from surrounding communities. They had been searching through the 12 miles of tunnels since 5 p. m. Monday.

against the Japanese army units, "with an increasing vigor."

Exact strength of the Chinese forces was not stated. However, it was said they included more than three regiments well equipped with artillery.

Fighting was reported continuing. The outcome was not revealed.

A further Domei dispatch from Shanghai said the Japanese third fleet had sent reinforcements to assist landing forces there.

The action was taken, it was stated, "to meet the pressing menace to Japanese residents as a result of the slayings of a Japanese naval officer and enlisted man."

Rear Admiral Tadao. Hondo, naval attaché at Shanghai, was stated to have protested against Chinese airplanes flying over Japanese warships.

their desks. The children on the rafters stopped their squirming and listened.

"In teaching I always got supplementary work," Mrs. Morris said. "If I found anything interesting at home I brought it to school. One day I brought a weekly magazine that had an article on Palestine and one of the pupils looking at it found an article on evolution and he asked me what it was. I said it was evolution and asked him if he had ever heard of the Darwinian theory."

"And I said, well, Mr. Darwin had a theory and I asked the pupil if he had ever heard of the missing link and he said yes. I replied 'I don't have time to tell you now but you look in the Book of Knowledge (that's a reference work we have) and find out for yourself. That's all I said.'"

Attorney Scott continued: "Now, did you not state clearly concerning a picture in front of one of the history books that a man was a monkey that lost his tail and that all men came from monkeys?"

"I did not," Mrs. Morris replied. Jack Jones, husky 14-year-old pupil, one of the chief complainants, was called to the stand.

"Well," he said, "in front of one of those ancient history books was the picture of a man, so she was reciting about that man and the man was hairy. So she said he was a monkey who had lost his tail."

And Raymond Stickle, another pupil:

"She told us this man had lost his tail. He had been a monkey. And maybe, by and by, he would better his condition and change again."

Mrs. Morris, whose pupils in the Bailey school, a one-room frame building of white ranged in age from 6 to 15, testified she began teaching in 1914.

The school directors themselves refused to testify in explanation of the charges on advice of counsel, who said that the directors were sitting as judge and jury and "therefore are incompetent to testify."

Mrs. Morris said she had a
